VOL. X, NO. 155 LIMA, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 17, 1894. PRICE THREE CENTS

THE BIENNIAL FIGHT.

It Is to Come Up Again In the Ohio Legislature.

SPECIAL ORDER FOR THURSDAY.

Mr. Cannon's Resolution Will Then Be Discussed and Probably a Vote Taken. A Sweeping Temperance Measure Introduced—Several Other Important Measures Introduced—Other Ohio News.

COLUMBUS, O., April 17.—The renewal of the war against the biennial session plan is very promising. Mr. Cannon moved to relieve the finance committee of his resolution providing that the legislature recess until next January and then hold an adjourned session. Mr. Doty, chairman of the finance committee, opposed the motion, but the house by a vote of 49 yeas to 17 nays, took the resolution out of the committee's hand.

The resolution was then amended so as to provide that the present session close May 10, and the adjourned session begin the first Monday in January, 1895. The resolution was made a special order for 10:15 a. m. next Thursday. Then the biennial fight will be fought over again.

Representative Brittain of Columbiana county introduced his joint resolution looking to the abolishment of capital punishment, and provides for solitary confinement. The resolution provides for the appointment of five from the senate and two from the house to investigate the subject of capital punishment and report in 1895 to the governor.

Mr. Rogers of Morrow introduced a sweeping temperance measure. It proposes even more radical changes than the Haskell county local option bill. Section 1 makes it unlawful to obstruct the view of the bar and its patrons from the street in all cities having a population of less than 20,000 inhabitants. Violations are punishable by a fine of $100 and the disbarment of the saloonkeeper from engaging in the saloon business for one year from the date of his conviction. If such person engages in the business before the year is up, he shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary from one to three years.

Section 2 provides that whoever carries on such business on Sunday or after 10 o'clock at night shall be liable to have his business confiscated as in the preceding section. The presence of people in the saloon at such time shall be evidence of the violation. If the convicted person continues to violate the act, the saloon shall be abated as a nuisance.

Mr. Clendening introduced a bill to authorize the board of public works to construct an embankment across the northwest corner of the Mercer county reservoir and sell about 300 acres of land thus reclaimed. A portion of the land will be added to the city of Celina.

Mr. Green introduced a remarkable insurance bill. It authorizes mutual assessment insurance companies to make more than one assessment for the same death in case the first assessment does not pay a policy in full.

The lynching of the negro Seymour Newlin at Mushyivania, Logan county, will be brought to the attention of the house. Representative Hill of Cincinnati, the author of the resolution condemning the lynching of Roscoe Parker in Adams county last December, will ask to have his resolution taken up from the calendar out of the regular order. After amending it so as to include the Newlin lynching, he will put it on passage. He desires an explanation of these cases of mob violence.

In the senate, Mr. Gear introduced two bills to reduce the number of officeholders. One provides for abolishing the board of state charities and the other proposes to abolish the sinking fund commission. The bills are aimed at two clerks, who have little work and draw fat salaries.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

Two Men Killed and Several Others Badly Injured.

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 17.—At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon Breece's sawmill, near Bainbridge, was wrecked by the boiler exploding, and Engineer Nate Weatherby and Frank Breece, brother of the proprietor, instantly killed.

The following persons were wounded: Grant Martin, skull fractured and badly scalded; he will probably die.

Samuel Husted, leg mashed and hurt internally.

Charles Bosler, leg broken and badly crushed.

E. A. Eberhart and Noah Little, seriously scalded.

The boiler had been condemned for a year and at the time of the explosion carried only 80 pounds of steam.

No National Coal Trust.

COLUMBUS, O., April 17.—E. A. Cole, Hocking Coal and Iron company, being asked as to the truth or the story that a national coal trust is to be inaugurated, said there was no truth in it. "If," said he, "there were but 100 operators it might be done, but with an operator at each crossroads, the thing is not practical."

DEATH OF MRS. CROSSLEY.

One of the Oldest Residents in Allen County—The Funeral.

Phoebe, wife of Mr. Ross Crossley, died at three o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Crossley residence, No. 702 West Market street, from stomach trouble. The deceased was aged sixty-six years and was one of the oldest residents of Allen county, having come here with her parents when she was quite young. She leaves a husband and nine children.

The funeral services will be held from Trinity M. E. church at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Interment in Woodlawn cemetery.

WILBUR FISK

Re-elected a Member of the Board of Health—The Appointment Gives Universal Satisfaction.

The council at its meeting last night re-elected Wilbur Fisk as a member of the Board of Health. It was a worthy selection and is a worthy recognition of Mr. Fisk's service for the city as a member of that board. There is no compensation attached to the position, but there is a vast amount of responsibility and a man merits an endorsement for the time he gives the city in serving upon the board. Mr. Fisk's re-election is a substantial endorsement of his service, yet his re-election by a Republican council so works upon the mind of the Morning Freak that it attempts to read out of the party the Republican members of the council and gives utterance to the sentiment that: "Republicans don't count for much." The selection of Mr. Fisk giver universal satisfaction to our citizens, both Democrats and Republicans, and there is much indignation expressed among the intelligent portion of the community with the wanton attack made upon Mr. Fisk by the publishers of that sheet, who detest Democrats and think that "Republicans do not count for much."

Drunkenness has no comparison in evil effect to the opium or morphine habit, when firmly fixed on the hapless victim.

Mothers should be careful in use of as simple a thing as a cough cure with their children. Many so-called cough cures depend upon the stupefying effect of the opium they contain to hush the cough. Brant't Balsam is one which can give your children with perfect confidence that it is entirely free from opiates, as well as a reliable cure, not only to stop the cough, but also perfectly heal the diseased parts. The G. R. & I. Road Pays Mrs. Kemmer Four Thousand Dollars.

The shocking death of Mr. C. F. Kemmer, the insurance man, at Grand Rapids, Mich., about a year ago, when he was run down by a switch engine at a G. R. & I. railroad crossing, is recalled by a statement which appeared in a Grand Rapids paper of recent date, to the effect that the company had paid Mrs. Kemmer $4,000 and that legal proceedings against the company for damages had been avoided.

Every farmer knows the folly of robbing his lands of virtue and strength without restoring anything, but the same man may rob his nerve system of strength and vitality for years and then wonder why disease has fastened on him. To all such unthinking spendthrifts of nerve force Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer comes as a friend to build up and revitalize the impoverished nerves and restore health. Abundant nerve force insures perfect physical and mental health and Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer strengthens and makes nerve force. Sold by Edman & Stout.

HELD.

Annual Meeting of Lima Line Stockholders.

Capital Stock Increased to Four Million—Local Railroad News.

The annual meeting of Stockholders of the Ohio Southern railroad was held at Springfield yesterday in the general offices there. There were present personally: M. W. Barse, New York City; Geo. W. Saul and Geo. H. Frey, Springfield, H. B. Moorehead and Jos. R. Megrue, Cincinnati. The other stockholders were represented by proxy.

Directors for the ensuing year were elected as follows: M. V. Barse, Geo. W. Saul, Geo. H. Frey, F. A. Barnaby and S. Bergmer, of New York; H. B. Moorehead, Jos. R. Megrue, James Bryan, of New York, and F. H. Allen, of Cincinnati. The directors will meet soon to elect officers.

The reports of the operation of the road for the past year were read and the capital stock increased $4,000,000.

The proposed extension over the "Grasshopper" road was not brought up but will probably be brought up at a called meeting.

It was stated positively that Ives is not a controlling owner of the road and that his interest in the road has been greatly exaggerated. He is only a minor stockholder, and has done no business for six months past. Mr. Barse, of New York, stated that Mr. Ives closed up his business affairs about six months ago, and went to the West Indies on a trip for his health. He is now on his way home, but will sail for Europe a short time after his arrival there. The directors present drew a very unfavorable contrast to Springfield on the treatment they have received by Springfield and Lima during the construction of the extension to Lima.

Lima has made a proposition to have the offices removed there, but it is understood that General Bushnell will make an offer which will keep the offices in Springfield.

Following are the most important items which are embodied in the annual report: The gross earnings for the year ending December 31, 1893, were $701,370.47, as against $711,541.37 the year previous; the operating expenses were $358,150.61, as against $349,491.73, leaving net earnings $343,219.86, as against $362,046.64.

The stockholders regard this report a most excellent showing, as the Lima extension was opened for business in January and the road did not receive any earnings from it. The road also lost by the coal strikes and by the generally prevailing hard times. During this panic the Ohio Southern had the courage to build, while many of the large corporations were canceling their contracts.

NOTES.

Engineer James Lewis, of the L. E. & W., has returned to work, after a short vacation.

Conductor Bashore, of the L. E. & W., is laying off.

Democratic Congressional Convention.

The Democrats of the Fourth Congressional District of Ohio will meet in convention at Sidney, Ohio, on Tuesday, May 1st, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., to put in nomination a candidate for Congress for said District, to be voted for at the next general election, said District being composed of the Counties of Allen, Auglaize, Darke, Mercer and Shelby, and to transact such business as may properly come before said convention. The basis of representation in said District Convention will be one to every one hundred votes cast for Grover Cleveland for President at the November election of 1892, and one vote for every fraction of fifty votes or over. This gives the Counties comprising the District the following representation in the convention:

Counties	No. Votes for Cleveland	No. Delegates
Allen	4945	49
Auglaize	3774	38
Darke	1916	49
Mercer	3683	37
Shelby	3344	32

PAVING THE SQUARE.

One of the important public measures which will come up before the present council within a short time will be the paving of the public square. It is a matter of regret that the ordinance authorizing this improvement does not contemplate the use of any other material than brick for paving, for it is admitted by common consent that asphaltem paving would have made a much better appearance on a large plot like the public square than brick, or any other form of paving. However, the council decided on brick, for reasons which seemed sufficient to them, and it now remains for them to procure the best of material and workmanship for the paving. There should be careful tests made of the quality of the brick upon which different bidders make estimates. The experience of cities which have used brick is that some are too soft, with too great absorbtive ability. They retain too much water and in winter freeze and thaw and grow soft; others are too hard and brittle and chip off with the action of wheels rolling over them. A careful test will be necessary that these extremes be avoided, and a selection made of only sound, well-burned brick made from good material, not burned enough to make them brittle. If possible, these tests should be public and made by competent experts who have no personal interest in the result. The tests should be free from even the suspicion of favoritism or partiality of any kind, and a standard having been established the bidding should be open to all who can comply with that standard.

No retrogression in the matter of quality should be contemplated or allowed. The city wants and should have the best and refuse to accept anything less than the best in the matter of pavement. Those securing contracts should be compelled to give a guarantee of five years' wear and held strictly to their contracts. This is what other cities are demanding and getting in their contracts for brick paving, and Lima should insist on and secure as favorable contracts as any one. But when a high standard of quality has been decided upon there should be open and free competition allowed to all bidders who are willing and able to comply with it. If this is done the city can suffer no loss and no private individual or corporation can justly complain of having been refused a chance to compete for paving contracts.

As this will be the first street paving done in the city, the adoption of brick for future work will depend upon the results which follow the use of that material in the Square. For this reason it will be to the interest of not only the city but the brick manufacturers as well to permit only the very choicest grade of paving brick to be used for this contract.

Congressman Tom Johnson, of the Cleveland district, will perhaps be able to put into practical shape some of his progressive ideas in the pottery colony in which he is said to be interested near East Liverpool. It is well known that in the vicinity of East Liverpool are varieties of potters' clays unsurpassed in the world for fineness and natural coloring. The only thing needed to make some of the most beautiful wares ever displayed is the lack of artistic skill and knowledge on the part of the potters themselves. The project of a number of potters at East Liverpool is to begin all over again, establish a new co-operative plant and turn out earthenware worthy of the United States and the State of Ohio. They will at the same time found a co-operative colony and a new city, established on the latest improved lines, moral, sanitary and otherwise. The pottery is expected to give employment to 1,500 men. In carrying on the affairs of a city, new or old, the first thing is to issue bonds and borrow money. This the co-operative East Liverpool enterprise has already undertaken to do. Forty-one million dollars is the sum wanted.

The Gazette is very sore because they were not notified of the work of the caucus last Thursday night, which was given to the readers of the TIMES-DEMOCRAT Friday, but did not see light in the morning Repeater until Tuesday. They expressed their contempt for the Republican party this morning in an article on the Board of Health matter in which they say "Republicans don't count for much."

The Lima Gazette is about to desert the Republican party, and this morning gives expression to its feelings in the sentiment that "Republicanism don't count for much." That is doing reasonably well, considering. A few more such raps as the Republican caucus given the mud-slingers will drive them out of the Republican party into the organization where they belong.

South Carolina.

In 1890 Benjamin R. Tillman was first elected governor of South Carolina. He was re-elected in 1892. His present term expires this year. He was the candidate of the rural districts, and his election may, in a measure, be considered a victory of country over city. The feeling between the two factions has been growing in bitterness until now South Carolina has two political parties, Conservatives and Tillmanites. The Conservatives are those who support the old order of things that existed before Tillman became governor. The Tillmanites support the governor in what he and they conceive to be reformatory measures and plans for the good of the state. The legislature is with the governor. Both conservatives and Tillmanites are Democrats.

One of the bills passed by the legislature last year was the state dispensary liquor law, much the same as that which Maine already had. It provides that only the state shall sell intoxicating drinks. At suitable places liquor stores shall be opened, where duly appointed state agents sell intoxicants at a fixed price. None is to be drunk on the premises. The law thus abolishes at one sweep all the rumshops and beer saloons of private individuals. This caused unspeakable bitterness and spirit of opposition. The feeling would not have run so high, probably had not the opposing political party, the Conservatives, seen their opportunity and taken advantage of it. Governor Tillman in his recent speech charges his opponents with fanning the flames of rebellion against law and order in their own political interest. When the rumshops were broken up, private citizens began to sell liquor in their houses.

Opponents of the dispensary law affirm that it is unconstitutional, and therefore they will not obey it. Governor Tillman retorts that, whether good or bad, it is the law, and they must obey it; that he will make them obey it, at least till the highest court of the state pronounces it unconstitutional. He has no choice, he says. The Conservatives on their side answer that this decision ought to have been rendered long ago, but that it has been unnecessarily delayed because the term of one of the judges, a Conservative, expires in July, and he will be succeeded by a Tillmanite judge, making two out of the three judges Tillmanites. The supreme and circuit judges in South Carolina are elected by the legislat-

Those ladies who fainted during a panic in a church recently are informed that they are away behind the times. It has gone out of fashion for women to faint. It belongs with the style of huge hoops and horsehair chignons. The woman of style nowadays keeps calm and cool always. Emotion is relegated strictly to the lower classes.

A recent book on correct dress and manners for men says that men who do not wear suspenders walk better than those who do.

LOVE AND THOUGHT.

What hath love with thought to do?
Still at variance are the two.
Love is sudden, love is rash,
Love is like the levin flash—
Comes as swift, as swiftly goes,
And his mark as surely knows.

Thought is lumpish, thought is slow,
Weighing long 'tween yes and no.
When dear love is dead and gone,
Thought comes creeping in anon
And in his deserted nest
Sits to hold the crowner's quest.

Since we love, what need to think?
Happiness stands on a brink
Whence too easy 'tis to fall
Whither's no return at all.
Have a care, half hearted lover;
Thought would only push her over.

—James Russell Lowell.

AN OLD MAID.

Everybody wondered how Mlle. Angeline Majolin happened to be an old maid. They all admitted that she was charming. Her head was bound with heavy braids of glossy hair, and her beautiful black eyes were full of a pathetic gentleness. She lodged in the fourth story of a tenement on the Rue Boursault alone with her blind mother, whom she attended constantly. These ladies received no company, but although they sought to attract no attention at any time whoever met them could not help feeling interested in them and that some sad mystery surrounded their seclusion.

The family of Majolin was 80 years ago one of the richest and most influential in the province. Unhappily M. Majolin was a gambler. He engaged in all sorts of speculations in order to recover the money which he had lost in play.

When he saw ruin staring him in the face, he killed himself. Mme. Majolin was doubly stricken by the loss of fortune and the violent death of her husband, whom, although he had caused her much suffering, she still loved dearly. And, alas, her misfortunes did not end here. Her eldest son had inherited the unfortunate failing of his father. At last, in order to evade justice, he fled to the colonies and was never heard from again. The only other remaining son perished in a hunting accident.

The poor lady then had left to her but a single child, her daughter Angeline. They removed to a small farm, which was attached to the grand castle in which they had once lived. There they managed to subsist on the produce of the place and a few rentals, all that remained of their once ample fortune. Here grief and tears soon caused Mme. Majolin to lose her sight, which day by day grew duller until she became blind.

Notwithstanding the isolation and sadness in which these two women lived, the beauty of Angeline, in spite of its somewhat serious and melancholy character, could not fail to attract attention. As she approached her twentieth year two young men began to show a marked admiration for her. One of them in particular was very assiduous.

It was their cousin, Maxime de Grandlieu, a young man of noble presence, a delightful companion, talented, strong and high spirited. He had just finished his studies and had come to the country for a season of rest before entering upon the brilliant career which he had marked out for himself and which his great fortune rendered possible.

The innocent and tender heart of Angeline responded at once to the young man's evident affection. A mysterious but delightful bewilderment would possess her after a waltz upon Maxime's arm. Enchanted by the music and their own happiness, they loved to linger for a moment's talk by themselves in the embrasure of a window, or they would exchange the flowers that they wore, she taking hers from her corsage and he his from his coat.

They had still other joys together. Among these not the least were their rambles among the fields, bathed in the delicious light of sunset. When they were tired or desired to study nature more attentively, they sat down at the base of the great trees and rested under their heavy shadows. Since their souls were simple and united, they spoke little.

At other times, when the sick mother gently complained that she was left alone too often, they remained together in the parlor, where the majestic portraits of their ancestors looked down upon them with a sort of grave indulgence. If he delayed to come, she would advance as far as the stairway, holding in her hand a bunch of white roses. When he began to climb the steps, she would playfully pelt him with the white petals.

Smilingly he would advance under this snowy avalanche, happy in the knowledge that he was beloved.

However, a shadow invisible to Angeline menaced her happiness even while she was in the first bloom of her new felicity.

Maxime, naturally averse to everything that was dolorous and dismal, gradually conceived a strong aversion for Mme. Majolin. The sight of her melancholy face spoiled all his joy. He was one of those who are chilled and repulsed by grief and infirmity, as if a deadly contagion lurked within them. The young girl, entirely wrapped up in her love, was slow to perceive the dislike which Maxime evinced toward her blind mother. Even if she had observed it, she would have called it simply the natural neglect resulting from his utter absorption in his love for herself.

At last one evening an explanation took place. They were on the terrace. Maxime de Grandlieu had taken Angeline's hand and for the first time had kissed it very tenderly and passionately.

"My dear one," he said, "it is time that our lives were blended together, for our hearts are inseparable. Will you accept my name and my fortune? We will travel. Your sad childhood has been full of mourning. You will perhaps forget your sorrow in my love. For the remainder of your life you shall know no deprivation. We will go all over the world rejoicing in our affection. Then we can make our home in Paris. Your mother can live here on her property, and we can watch over and see that she wants for nothing. Of course she would be out of place in the midst of our elegant life, where her infirmity would be a blot and a shadow. You will be fitted to adorn society, and I shall be a constant worshiper at your shrine."

The pale moon shed its perfidious rays upon the face of the young man as he uttered these words. Far away the trees, grouped together among the shadows, resembled spirit beings pretending to caress and press close to each other.

Deeply moved, Angeline remained quiet. The hour seemed very solemn to her. Finally she raised her head and responded in a low voice: "Maxime, I will reflect on what you have said and will answer you tomorrow. Adieu."

She passed a wretched night. Her mother went to bed and to sleep, breathing with the regular respiration of age, which resembles so much that of a child, but the young girl in her little chamber burst into sobs. Her emotion was stronger than she was, and for awhile she allowed it full sway. A veil had been torn from her eyes—a veil which for 20 years had covered from her sight her own heart. She had not realized before the shocking selfishness which filled it.

Ah! Her beautiful, simple dream! How it disappeared in the awful sternness of real life, never until now wholly revealed to her! In the first place, she was poor. She had felt it keenly this evening from the way in which Maxime had spoken of his own wealth. Until now she had thought little of it, for she had but few wants. The beauty of the earth—its skies, its trees, its flowers, its birds, its free air—sufficed for her.

If she married him, she must, as an obedient wife, follow his own gay, active life. The requirements of marriage with him appeared distinct and hard. It would be necessary for her to leave this poor, infirm mother—the victim of so many misfortunes. She could no longer comfort her with tenderness and daily ministrations. Her mother, who could barely endure her child's absence for an hour, would in solitude become more and more unhappy and would end her days in the charge of some impatient and mercenary hireling. Certainly there could be found no one to replace the affection and attentions of a daughter.

Angeline wept for hours, and sometimes in the midst of her tears there would appear to her her father, with a revolver in his hand. Ah! Did all men resemble each other, and were they all executioners of their wives? "Unhappy those who desire the joys of Hymen!" she thought. "The best destiny for women is to live solitary or devoted to another of their own kind, far away from men!"

Day dawn still found her a prey to these lugubrious thoughts. Calm came, however, slowly and frightfully.

Angeline had taken a decided resolution. She would never marry. She would remain as she was, having but one object. She would never leave her mother, ill and blind. She would remain a maid, satisfied with the joys of an approving conscience and cheerfully performing the gentle charities which came to her hand. Perhaps some day the wounds of her heart would heal. She would regret nothing, and she could after saying her prayers sleep with clasped hands, thanking heaven for according to her peace of body and mind.

Quickly she wrote some words of refusal which would admit of no reply. Then she occupied herself with gathering together some effects and with persuading her mother to remove to Paris.

No; she wished no more to live in the country, where she had suffered so much and where every object would remind her of the past. Mme. Majolin yielded to what she thought a caprice of her daughter and conformed without much complaint. She never knew the sacrifice of Angeline in her behalf.

This is why the young girl has always shut her heart to things without. Her first and only love is the seal of her solitude.

Her mother, whom she never quitted and whose eyes she closed in death, has long ago passed beyond this life. And now, her last duty accomplished, Angeline Majolin continues to live alone—an old maid.—From the French.

Saved by a Dog.

The sagacity of a dog saved a Woburn family from being burned to death. Fire started in the house of John Rooney on Poole street, North Woburn, about 2 o'clock in the morning, and the family, consisting of five persons, barely escaped with their lives. They were saved by the instinct of the house dog, who rushed up stairs and aroused Mr. Rooney by barking. Escape by the stairways to the lower part of the house was cut off by the fire, and the upper rooms were fast filling with smoke. Mr. Rooney succeeded in tying some bed coverings together, and with this lowered one of his sons to the ground. He obtained a ladder and rescued the others, but not until they were nearly overcome by the smoke. Afterward the dog was found crouching in a corner of one of the rooms nearly suffocated.—Boston Transcript.

Buckles For Hats.

Oblong buckles, curved more or less, are a most approved decoration now for hats. When intended for this purpose, they have rather formidable pointed tongues, which pierce the ribbon or drapery drawn through the buckle. Frequently they measure six or eight inches in length and will go nearly half round the crown of a sailor hat. But their use is not confined to this shape of hat. They deck broad brims and toques equally well. Similar buckles are made in cut jet, but that in imitation diamonds is the favorite.—London Milliner.

To Ward Off a Cold.

If you keep sneezing and have sensations of chilliness, it is a fair sign of coming cold. Sometimes it can be broken quite effectually by a hot lemonade. Get the lemon and sugar ready and set the water boiling. Then bathe the feet in hot water or take a hot bath all over. Retire immediately and have brought to you the glass of lemon and sugar over which the boiling water has been poured. Drink it down as hot as possible. You won't have a symptom of cold in the morning.—Washington Star.

How to Cure a Sick Headache.

If you ever have a sick headache and want it cured quickly and effectively, with none of the debilitating effects of drugs, just take a tablespoonful of red pepper, mix it with vinegar to a thick paste and spread on a cloth—cotton or linen—bind upon the forehead with a handkerchief from temple to temple; then take about two grains of the red pepper in a teaspoonful of vinegar and swallow it. The mixture on the forehead will burn, but not blister, and in the course of 10 minutes the headache will disappear under the stimulating effects of this remedy, leaving the patient feeling as if such distressing things as sick headache were unknown to the human family.—Kansas City Journal.

Rare Documents.

The fileroom of the house of representatives in Washington contains many rare treasures. A letter from General Washington, a petition from Andrew Jackson after he had lost 800 gallons of whisky, are prominent relics among the interesting documents.—Philadelphia Ledger.

JUST LIKE A MAN.

She patterned him some nightshirts on the sewing circle plan,
And he stood it like a man,
And she kept him wildly hopping with her New Year's bills for shopping till he thought there was no stopping,
But he stood it like a man.

She made him search for ribbons from Beersheba down to Dan,
But he stood it like a man.
When she bought some new ball dresses and she killed him with caresses, it was hard, he now confesses,
But he stood it like a man.

She made him wear some neckties that to fearful colors ran,
But he stood it like a man.
And, as might have been expected, though it was with mien dejected that he smoked what she selected,
Yet he stood it like a man.

But when she took the paper that each day he used to scan,
While he waited like a man,
And around a bonnet spread it before he'd even read it, why, he cussed, and then she said it
Was just like a horrid man.

Delighted the Stokers.

A pretty story, which has the merit of being true, is told of a certain professional singer. He had a beautiful tenor voice, of which he took the best of care, so that when he was crossing the Atlantic one summer with a party of friends they were surprised to find that he disappeared from view every evening at about the same time.

"Afraid of the night air," said one with a slight smile.

"Afraid we'll ask him to sing probably," said another, but no one questioned him, as he was known to be quite immovable from his own way.

But when the last night on board came a delegation descended to his stateroom to beg for a song or two and discovered that he was not there. They looked for him in vain until at last the captain, who had evidently kept the secret as long as he could, said, pointing in the direction of the engine room:

"I think you'll find him down there. That's where he's gone every evening."

Sure enough, when the delegation arrived at the engine room, they heard the sound of a guitar and a voice, and there, lolling against the wall, was the recreant tenor, singing his best for the delight of the stokers, whom he had entertained in this way for more than an hour every evening during the voyage.—London Tit-Bits.

An Amateur Highwayman.

The late Professor Wilson went once to spend his holidays at Castleton manse as the guest of one of his favorite old students, the Rev. Angus Barton. When out fishing one day, he met in a lonely part three border gypsies, who ordered him to stand and deliver. As he declined, the gypsies thought to use force. He was, however, one of the best boxers of the day, and as they came on he knocked them down one by one. He then ordered them each to turn out his pockets, which they did, handing him the sum of £10. When he returned to the manse, he handed the money over to the minister to give to the poor. He said "he had been doing a little bit of border freebooting that morning."—Family Herald.

A Substitute For Horseback Riding.

An apparatus by which both the expense and difficulty of riding on a live horse are avoided consists of a saddle mounted on a stand, the interior works of which are so arranged that with a minimum exertion on the part of the rider he may reproduce the trotting and galloping motions of a horse. Mounting astride of the horse, the rider places his feet on supports at the sides, which can be raised to any level and which correspond to stirrups in ordinary riding. In front of him are two handles, which can be also raised or lowered, thus bringing the muscles of the arms and chest into action.

The whole saddle can be also raised or lowered, thus giving an easy trot or gallop at the will of the "horseman." The rider puts the horse into motion by his movements up and down. Thus the apparatus is different from the mechanical horse exhibited some years back, in which the horse was moved by a pivot in the center of its body, which was worked by a steam engine beneath the floor. The experiment is very ingenious.—London Lancet.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Perfectly Cured.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I had been in poor health for a long time. For years my appetite was very poor. Supper was my best meal, but even then I could not sleep nights and I had to walk the floor a great deal at night. I was very nervous and had frequent dizzy spells and headaches. I suffered with pains in my bowels.

I Did Not Think I Could Live

three months when I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla for my blood. Before I had used one bottle I began to feel better and my appetite improved. I was troubled with constipation, so I got a box of Hood's Vegetable Pills. Soon I passed a knotted tape worm 25 feet long. At once the pains in my bowels ceased and though very weak, I began to pick up in appetite and strength. I am no longer troubled with headache or dizzy spells, and sleep soundly. I am perfectly well and work hard each day." MRS. SARAH F. COMBS, Auburn, Mass.

The Greatest Experiment Ever Made In Electricity Is Being Put to Test.

At last Niagara falls have been harnessed, and the dream of engineers for years has been realized. One of the greatest engineering enterprises ever undertaken in this country and by far the greatest experiment ever made in electricity has been put to the test to decide whether $4,000,000 have been poured into a hole in the ground or whether this sum has been planted in fruitful soil to bring forth a hundredfold.

The object of the company which undertook the stupendous task is to catch the immense power of the fearful onrush of water of the great river and turn it to utilitarian purposes. If the water which rushes down the penstocks 140 feet turns the wheels below and sends back up to the surface 5,000 horsepower from each wheel, the day is not far distant when every wheel in New York west of the Hudson river shall be turned with power from the falls, and a mighty current shall be transmitted probably as far west as Chicago, and it may be as far south as Baltimore.

The tunnel, through which 500,000 cubic feet of water will flow each minute when it is used to its full capacity, is a gloomy place. It is 21 feet high and is horseshoe shaped, being 18 feet 10 inches wide at the widest part and 14 feet 5 inches at the bottom. Since Oct. 4, 1890, when N. B. Gaskell, who was then president of the Cataract Construction company, dug the first spadeful of earth for the tunnel, 17 men have been killed in the tunnel, 8 in the wheel pit and 2 in the work outside. While the tunnel was being dug some 1,500 men were kept busy, and the payrolls ran as high as $60,000 in one month.

Dr. Coleman Sellers of Philadelphia has had charge of the work during all the late years of its progress and supervised the great test, of which the telegraphic reports in the press have given ample account. The realization of what was once a scientific day dream will add new luster to the glowing achievements of the closing nineteenth century.—Philadelphia Press.

STATESMEN'S ECCENTRICITIES.

Kate Field Says Our Senators Would Be Lost Without Trousers Pockets.

"Do you prefer side or slant or top pockets in your trousers?"

"I don't care, I'm sure. All I want is pockets that I can get my hands into."

This was the conversation I overheard the other day between a tailor and his customer, and I was reminded of it an hour later as I looked down upon the floor of the senate chamber and watched our grave and reverend lawmakers going through their work. In the middle aisle, carrying on a triangular debate, were Senator Proctor and Senator Gorman, each with his left hand in his trousers pocket, and Senator Allison with both hands similarly incased. They were presently joined by Senator Brice, who had his right hand pocketed, while Senator Lindsay strode from the Democratic over to the Republican side, with both his hands in his pockets, almost running into Senator Lodge, who was carrying his in the same way.

I could not help thinking of the old story of Daniel Webster and the button on his jacket which he always used to twirl while making his best recitations in school. It is said that a little girl who had long stood next to him in his spelling class, and who was ambitious to pass him, contrived one day to snip off this button, and at the next recitation, when Daniel felt for it and found it missing, he was so overcome that he missed the world put to him, and his clever rival went to the head of the class. Suppose some malicious person, bent on destroying the comfort and dignity of the senate, should contrive to have the trousers pockets of all the senators sewed up over night, what would become of American oratory and legislation the next day?—Kate Field's Washington.

Picture Owners Getting Tired.

The owners of works of art not only in England, but throughout Europe, complain of the injustice of the increasing demands for the loan of their treasures for international, national and local exhibitions, says a New York Sun correspondent. The pictures just returned from Chicago are wanted immediately for Vienna and then for Antwerp. English owners are openly talking of refusing. To refuse to lend seems churlish, however, and might prove damaging to the reputation, not merely of individual artists, but of the British school. On the other hand, if the owners lend whenever they are asked they never have possession of their own pictures. The Royal academy will probably soon consider the dilemma.

Buddhism In Paris.

A fresh propaganda of Buddhism is being undertaken in Paris, says a correspondent. It is asserted that 30,000 Parisians now profess the ancient religion. Many well known women describe themselves as eclectic Buddhists. A little volume gives a summary of the doctrines of the new creed. It has just been printed, and large numbers have been bought by wealthy neophytes and will be distributed next week among all classes. The converts are not expected to desert the churches of which they are members. The copies of the book have been bound in black morocco, gilded to resemble prayer books.

Her Faith Led to Death.

Mrs. William Seidentopf died Saturday from the effects of a dose of poison, which she spread on a piece of bread and then deliberately ate. Mrs. Seidentopf was a Christian science believer, and it is thought that she ate the poison to prove her faith. Even after the agony resultant from the action of the poison had begun, she refused to allow a doctor to be called and was beyond hope of saving when one was summoned.—Council Bluffs (Ia.) Dispatch.

Priest John.

Presbyter, or Priest John, was a name given in the middle ages to a supposed Christian sovereign said to hold his empire in some central part of Asia (Tibet), though, according to the Portuguese, he was king of Abyssinia. Oungh Khan, khan of the Crim Tartars, in the beginning of the thirteenth century, is, however, regarded as the actual individual mentioned as Prester John, that person having taken priest's orders, thereto induced by the missionaries, who had penetrated the country through Mesopotamia and Armenia, followers of the Nestorian creed. Timbs, in his "Curiosities of History," gives a slightly different account: "The king of Tendac, in Asia, who, like the Abyssine or Ethiopian emperor, preserved great state and did not condescend to be seen by his subjects above twice or three times a year."

Mandeville, who professes to have traveled over Prester John's country, makes him sovereign of an archipelago of islands in India beyond Bactria and says that "a former emperor traveled into Egypt, where, being present at divine service, he asked who those persons were who stood before the bishop. Being told they should be priests, he said he would no more be called king nor emperor, but priest, and would have the name of him that came first out of the priests and was called John, and so have all the emperors since been called Prester John."—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE OLD VALENTINE.

A souvenir of the bygone years,
Breathing old odors faint as musk
Which roses spill in dew and dusk;
Its blazoned pages dulled by tears;
Its faded Cupid drooping low,
With broken wing and rusty bow;
A leaf of life turned old and sear,
Yet still she holds it sweet and dear,
For love embalms each simple line
Of that old, faded valentine.

She pores upon the cherished page—
A lily past her morning glow,
But fair as in the long ago.
To such as she what matters age,
Whose love is ageless, and whose truth
Makes in her soul eternal youth?
Still unforgotten kisses thrill
With rapture her swift pulses; still
She cries: "How bright this world would be
Could you, O Love, come back to me,
As once my own and only mine,
My bonny knight and valentine!

"The fault was mine—oh, hapless fate!—
To learn our needs and blame too late,
When prayers and tears cannot atone
For wrong and sorrow dealt our own!"
But, lo, a tread of eager feet
Presages something strange and sweet!
He comes, forgiven, to forgive!
"Sweetheart, to love that is to live,
And love like ours can never die."
Nor need to voice her heart's reply!
More eloquent the dumb, dear sign
Of that long treasured valentine.

—New York Ledger.

An Early Closing Argument.

An extraordinary scene was recently witnessed in County road, Liverpool. Handbills had been extensively circulated in the district asking for 5,000 rotten eggs to throw at shops found open after 5 o'clock on Thursdays, and on the following Thursday a great crowd gathered at a draper's shop in County road and pelted it with eggs.—Liverpool Mercury.

Dr. Daniel G. Brinton writes that "the most common and fatal defect of the female mind is lack of sense of abstract justice." The principals of girls' colleges should see that the sense of abstract justice is at once supplied to the female mind.

DELPHOS.

Sudden Death of Lafayette Mericle From Apoplexy

Local Notes and Personal Mention From the Canal Town

DELPHOS April 17—(Special Cor)—Will Wagner's barber shop is much improved in appearance by the use of wall paper and paint

The sprinkling wagon made its appearance on Main street again yesterday The bad weather now seems to be at an end

George Almy will erect a fine new residence on his property on West Third street the coming summer

"Florida on Wheels exhibited at the Clover Leaf depot yesterday and drew crowds all day They exhibited in Ohio City today

Carl Zettinger editor of the Kurier blat, has in use in his office a typewriter which will print either German or English, as the operator may desire It can be changed with very little trouble, and is a great convenience

We were misinformed yesterday as regards Mrs Mumaugh being ill with consumption It is her daughter Mrs Hofrichter, who is ill and at this writing is lying very low

A BAD MAN

Mick Redmon the young man arrested Sunday morning on the charge of assault and battery preferred by Marion Brower a canal boatman was given a hearing before Mayor Baxter and plead guilty to the charge The Mayor did not give his decision until yesterday morning, when he fined him $10 and costs Being unable to pay his fine, he was taken to Dayton yesterday afternoon by Constable O Neill to work out his fine in the Dayton workhouse

WILL NOT COME HOME

Another telegram was received from Mr Craven at Marionette, Wis stating that he was not injured and would not come home but would stay with Mr Martin, who is now lying in the hospital at that place with both feet cut off at the ankles He made a misstep in getting on his engine and fell with his feet under the wheels He is now resting easy and will no doubt pull through Mr Martin has a host of friends in Delphos who are grieved to learn of his misfortune

SUDDEN DEATH

Lafayette Mericle son of Isaac Mericle living about three miles east of Delphos died suddenly last Saturday evening of apoplexy He seemed to be in his usual good health and ate supper that evening with the rest of the family, and after supper conversed with his sister until about 9 o clock, when he started to the kitchen to take a drink of water Just as he was entering the door he suddenly placed his hands to his head and with a groan fell to the floor He was picked up and placed on a couch where he expired in a few minutes He did not speak after being stricken down, so quick was the work of death He was 21 years of age and was the possessor of a host of friends The blow is a sad one for his parents as he was a very promising young man and had a bright future before him The funeral was held from the Rush more church yesterday afternoon and was very largely attended The remains of the unfortunate young man were interred in Hartshorn cemetery

ASSAULTED AN OFFICER

Adam Marquel, an Englishman was bound over to court yesterday by Mayor Baxter in the sum of $500 on the charge of assault and battery and resisting an officer He was going from house to house demanding food and at the time had his pockets full of food that had been given him Marshal Bryan ordered him to leave town when he became insolent and struck at the marshal striking him on the shoulder and on the head, whereupon the marshal drew his mace and laid the fellow out He was handcuffed and taken to the police station and locked up The affair took place at the P F depot and Mayor Baxter was a witness to the tussle and gave the fellow a hearing and bound him over to court Marshal Bryan took him to Lima yesterday afternoon and he was locked up in the county jail to await the action of Common Pleas court He is a tough customer and the marshal was compelled to use considerable force in handcuffing him as he fought like a madman

To the Readers of the Times Democrat

Have you seen John Lewis Childs Spring Catalogue of SEEDS, BULBS and PLANTS? There is no Catalogue, among the many, more beautiful and tasty in make up! Nothing more thorough and original in illustration and description! Nothing more comprehensive accurate, interesting and reliable in detail!

It is unique in conception, original in design, and altogether beautiful! It is a marvellous compendium of the knowledge of plants and fittingly represents the largest SEED and FLORAL establishment in the world

This Catalogue is said to be the most extensive issue of its kind In evidence of this, its first edition, sent to old customers done, exceeded 600 000 The cost of printing, postage and other items relating to this invaluable catalogue aggregates a sum total of $126,000, and when bagged for mailing will fill twenty of the largest sized mail cars This enormous expense is warranted by a business that sends seeds, bulbs and plants all over the world a business that is so large that it requires the sending out of THREE TONS OF MAIL each day and demanding the exclusive work of two hundred people whose duties are to fill the required orders

There are twenty substantial buildings connected with this vast business which are admirably equipped and fitted with every convenience One of these constitutes the finest seed house in America Another of enormous size, is completely filled with gladiolus and other varieties of bulbs Others are used for storage and some for special work Over two hundred acres are devoted to the bearing of heavy crops of flowers, seeds bulbs, fruits and vegetables

The green houses devoted to the propagation of plants and growing them to the proper condition for sending out cover several acres of ground

Besides this vast range of green houses there are immense "trial grounds devoted to procuring by tests the best in quality of seeds bulbs and plants One of the best exponents of this wonderful industry is the Mayflower, the leading horticultural journal of the world This periodical a monthly publication is gotten up in the most attractive manner and through the medium of its pages the publisher endeavors to keep amateurs posted and instructed in new varieties and modes of culture, and teach such general knowledge of gardening and flower culture as is most needed

The catalogue setting forth the merits of Childs vast establishment has three distinct features separate and apart from the beautiful colored plates which adorn and glorify its pages Indeed one may see that there are three catalogues instead of one embodied in its comprehensive pages the first devoted to the subject of seeds, the second to plants and bulbs the third to nursery stock Each of these contains the most valuable list of representative articles ever offered together especially valuable because each variety offered has been careful ly tested and selected as the very best of its sort

No one can appreciate the progress that is being made in gardening and floriculture without seeing some of the beautiful new plants the triumph of the florist's skill During the last ten years the Childs have led the world in the introduction of valuable plant and bulb novelties

It were a vain task to attempt anything like a comprehensive review of this Catalogue and the large business which it represents

Send 25 cents for Catalogue to John Lewis Childs, Floral Park N Y The inducements offered to those interested in any department of gardening will compensate them many times over for the trouble of sending The Catalogue is a gem in itself to say nothing of the many advantages which its pages offer

The Catalogue is mailed free to all customers Send for seeds bulbs and plants to the CHILDS You will have no postage to pay, you will get the very best in variety, and you will have the Catalogue free Remember the address is John Lewis Childs Floral Park, N Y

Modeling In Clay Dangerous

Modeling in clay which was a popular fad in schools two or three years ago, has been generally abandoned It was found that where large numbers of children each after the other handled the same clay the skin diseases of one were communicated to all There is really no instruction in art gained by teachers amusing their pupils in this way The younger scholars like it but it is better to let them find their amusement in the mud pies which they will make without any instruction That kind of play may not be good for the clothes but it never injured health American Cultivator

About Mrs Partington

It was while associated with The Gazette that the call for my appearance in the lecture field grew peremptory and in spite of natural obstacles and entire inexperience through the kind permission and advice of Colonel Clapp I was after much importunity of lecture committees and the expenditure of a small fortune in postage stamps devoted to circulars induced to go meeting with tolerable success on the rostrum and obtaining a wealth of experience some of which the present opportunity admits of my describing

George W Curtis I think has said with regard to lecturing as it was that if one has stood on his head successfully in private he must do the same in public I found it so Mrs Partington was the one wanted but I would not make a mountebank of myself Artemus Ward wrote me from Cleveland Come out here as the old woman put on the cap and specs and you will carry the town ' Josh Billings wrote me Trot out the old dame ' But I would not, to my cost and sacrificed a fortune for a sentiment I never met with but one serious failure and that proceeded from illness —B P Shillaber in New England Magazine

The New England Farmer

The New Englander is really no less generous than the westerner he is merely less lavish For generations the New England farmer has cultivated economy until it is become a fine art He has pared off his expenditures to so sharp an edge that one cannot touch them without being cut He has been as saving as the Scotchman and for the same reason —a cruel climate and a niggardly soil would starve him else

I sometimes fancy many traits of resemblance between the Scotch and the Puritans They have the same unrelenting energy the same stern theology—in both cases considerably softened of late years—the same dry humor the same very vigorous curiosity, frequently allied to a very anæmic sense of delicacy the same moral and physical intrepidity that seldom brags and never surrenders the same stoical coldness without and deep and tender affections under the crust, the same apparent pettiness of thrift that looks like sordidness, the same devotion to those things that make for righteousness and the same ungrudging sacrifice of all of them if the need come —Scribner's

THE SLATE

Selected at the Secret Caucus

Presented to the Council Last Night.

The List Decided upon at the Meeting Last Thursday Night

And Exclusively Published in the Times-Democrat, Goes through with but a Single Break — The Council Meeting.

Last Thursday night the Republican majority in the City Council held a secret caucus to decide upon a president, city clerk and members of the Board of Health. The meeting resulted in the selection of the following list, which was published in THE TIMES-DEMOCRAT the following day, while the morning Stupidity published the result this morning, five days after the TIMES-DEMOCRAT announced the result of the meeting:

J. B. Hughes for President, Charles E. Lynch for City Clerk and Charles Stolzenbach and Captain J. L. Smith for members of the Board of Health.

The only scratch made on the slate after it had been reported to the Council was in the Board of Health, as will be found in the following report of the meeting, the balloting in all the others being strictly a party vote.

For the news of the day take the TIMES-DEMOCRAT. For that of last week, take the Gazette.

THE CITY COUNCIL CONVENED

at 7:30 o'clock last night, being called to order by president Jones. The following members were present:

Hughes, Fali, Greenland, Wise, Spellacy, Jackson, Dietrich, Foley, Bryan and Butler. Members of the old council absent were: Lawlor, Kendal and Roberts.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. On motion of Mr. Hughes, President Jones was tendered a vote of thanks for his kindness during past year. On motion the old council then adjourned.

Mayor Smiley then called the meeting to order and announced that the organization of new council was in order and, as their names were called the following councilmen-elect took the regular oath:

J. H. Allen, Dexter Chapin, James Harley, J. B. Jackman, W. H. Allen, W. H. Standish, J. W. Kemper and John McVey.

Mayor Smiley next announced that nominations for president of the new body was in order.

Messrs Frank Dietrich, J. B. Hughes and James Harley were nominated, the latter, Harley, declining, as Hughes was the caucus nominee and he was pledged to support him. The motion carried to cast the vote by open ballot.

The vote resulted as follows: Hughes 8, Dietrich 6, being strictly a party vote.

Mr. Hughes was declared elected.

Messrs. Harley and Greenland were nominated for the office of vice president, and the vote resulted as follows: Greenland 6, Harley 8. Mr. Harley was elected, also by a party vote.

Messrs. C. E. Lynch, the Republican caucus nominee, and J. Boyd Douglas, the present incumbent, were nominated for city clerk. The vote resulted: Lynch 8, Douglass 6.

ANOTHER PARTY VOTE.

This completed the organization of the new body, and President Hughes took the chair. He, of course, thanked the council for his election to the office, and announced the nomination of two members of the board of health in order. Mr. Harley nominated Capt. Smith and Chas. Stolzenbach, the Republican caucus nominees, while Mr. Dietrich nominated Wilbur Fisk and Mr. Kemper, a Republican bolter at this juncture nominated William Botkins. The motion carried that the members of the board of health be elected by open ballot.

The ballot resulted: For Fisk, Democrat—Deitrich, Foley, Greenland, Jackman, McVey and Spellacy, Democrats, and Kemper and Wise, Republicans; total 8.

For Smith, Republican — Allen, Chapin, Fall, Harley, Hughes and Standish, Republicans; total 6.

Mr. Fisk was declared elected.

The balloting for the other candidate resulted:

For Stolzenbach, Republican—Allen, Chapin, Fall, Harley, Hughes, Standish and Wise Republicans. Total 7.

For Botkins, Republican — Dietrick, Foley, Greenland, Jackman McVey and Spellacy, Democrats, and Wise, Republican. Total 7. Another vote was taken but the result unchanged. A motion to adjourn was made but lost, and a third vote was taken and again resulted in a tie.

A motion by Mr. Dietrich to vote by secret ballot was lost.

A fourth vote also resulted in a tie, and a motion to lay the election of second man over for one week resulted in another tie vote, but President Hughes voted yea and the motion was carried.

City engineer Gamble requested the council to select a rodsman for him.

Mr. Kemper moved that the engineer be instructed to choose his own rodsman. Carried.

Matter of compensation yet due old street force referred to finance committee.

Council adjourned.

LIMA OIL

To be Refined at the Standard's Olean Plant.

The Works to be Enlarged, but Will Not Affect the Solar Refinery in this City.

"The Standard Oil Company's extensive refining plant, the Acme, at North Olean," says the Olean Herald, "which has long been one of Olean's principal industries, but has of late years been running at a reduced capacity, is to be considerably enlarged and again run at full capacity.

"The refinery is to be fitted up for the refining of Lima oil, which has heretofore been refined only at Lima, Whiting and Cleveland.

"The proposed change here will not decrease their output, but will simply increase operations. In fact, it is made necessary by the increased production. Whether or not the Acme will continue to refine Pennsylvania oil upon circumstances. The works will be fitted up to their full capacity to refine Lima oil."

WILL DEPEND LARGELY

If the proposed addition to the Olean refinery is built, and there is now no doubt but that it will be, it will not reduce the amount of oil refined at the Solar refinery. The Solar works will be run to their full capacity just the same. The fact that the production of Lima oil is increasing beyond the capacity of the present refineries has forced the company to enlarge the Olean plant to keep up with the production and demand.

CRUSHED HIS FOOT

While Climbing Over a Freight Train Last Evening.

About eight o'clock last night, Peter Ruibell, an employe of the Ohio Southern grade contractor, started from their tents, between the C., H. & D. railroad and Forest avenue, to go down Main street. Arriving at the C. & E. track, he attempted to climb over a slowly moving freight train, and in stepping across between two cars he set his left foot on the link between the drawbars, when the air brakes were suddenly applied and the slack caught Ruibell's foot between the heavy drawbars, mashing it badly. He climbed down off the train and was assisted back to his tent by some men, after which Grosjean's ambulance was summoned and he was removed to Mrs. Myers' hospital, corner of Elm and Elizabeth streets, where the foot was amputated at the instep by Dr. Herrmann.

ROUND ABOUT.

It is not too early to agitate the matter of a celebration of the Fourth of July.

Let this matter be taken up by the various patriotic organizations of the city, and we believe Lima can get up a grand celebration that will do credit to the city.

In years past Limaites have gone away from home to spend the day, while had a proper effort been made, all our citizens could have remained at home to spend the day.

Get up a celebration and invite our country cousins to spend the day in the city.

It begins to look as though the Ohio Southern railroad company is using Lima's enterprise as a tool. Some time ago it was announced by the company that they would remove their offices to this city for a stipulated amount. The amount was raised and the company notified, but instead of removing from Springfield they will remain where they are if Springfield does as well by them as Lima offered. This was decided upon at the directors' meeting. In other words, Lima's energy has been drawn upon in an effort to arouse the city of Springfield to do something for the company. The company offered to locate their shops here for a stipulated sum and a certain amount of land. Before any efforts are put forth to that end, it should first be learned if the same object is in view as was in the case of the "desired" removal of the general offices.

Roxy Bound Over.

Roxy Cook, who was arrested Saturday for throwing a cigar lighter at George Huefner, bartender at Orr's saloon, and charged with assault with intent to kill, was arraigned before Mayor Smiley last evening. He waived an examination and was bound over to the court of common pleas. He is now in the county jail in default of bail.
